

SASHIKAKU

The puzzle grid contains numbers in some cells.

The aim is to divide the grid into rectangular and square regions such that each region contains exactly one given number.

A given number represents the difference between the width and height of the region to which it belongs.

	6
	2						1
		2					1
	2
							3
			5			5

