

STITCHES

The puzzle grid is divided into regions. Connect each region with all its neighbour regions with exactly one line ("stitch").

The length of each stitch is one cell (that is, it connects two orthogonally adjacent cells from different regions).

A cell can be visited at most by one stitch. A number at the edge of the grid indicates how many stitch end points must be placed in the corresponding row or column.

