

SASHIKAKU

The puzzle grid contains numbers in some cells.

The aim is to divide the grid into rectangular and square regions such that each region contains exactly one given number.

A given number represents the difference between the width and height of the region to which it belongs.

							2		3
		2		2
					2
					1
					5		3
					5	6
								2
					4		1
						6

