

SASHIKAKU

The puzzle grid contains numbers in some cells.

The aim is to divide the grid into rectangular and square regions such that each region contains exactly one given number.

A given number represents the difference between the width and height of the region to which it belongs.

0			0
					0
						4	0
							4
							1
5	5
		3	0

